30.03.2020

Are you working from home due to the corona virus?

Due to the corona virus, Switzerland finds itself in an exceptional situation, and everybody is urged to stay at home if at all possible. For this reason, an increasing number of employees work from home. But what should they watch out for with regard to security?

Due to the exceptional situation, the Federal Council has taken more stringent measures. These are meant to curb the corona virus and protect those who are particularly vulnerable. Many employees can also undertake various tasks from home. Creating a home office makes just that possible, so that an increasing number of people are working from home.

But you may be new to working from home, and might just feel a bit overwhelmed to start with.

Here (https://www.ebas.ch/en/top-5-steps-to-work-securely-from-home/) you can find five recommendations which will provide more security for your home office. And the best thing is they will not just ensure you work more securely, these measures will also protect you and your family since they are preventing your home from falling victim to a cyber-attack.